Mahjong cheat sheet

I've been playing mahjong since 2012. I love the game, but I didn't own a series until last year when a friend gifted me one. Before I had a series, I got some friends together and Taught them to play Chinese mahjong in Julian Bradfield's majong program. It was great and we had a lot of fun play. The program helped them learn by providing English tools on their tiles and illegal actions disagrees. When you're playing with real tiles, though, we don't have that luxury. I couldn't find a good reference sheet online, so I did one. It's inspired by the table on Wikipedia. I replaced some of the themes with them that I usually use (e.g. Arrow was changed to Dragons) and replaced the images with Unicode characters. The three tile calls and definitions are also included below the table. This reference sheet is intended for Mahjong Chinese classics, but since Chinese classics are the most fundamental of versions, it can be adapted to teach the basics of any version. This reference sheet is also available as a PDF, a PDF 4-up, and as an ODT. check sheetChineseChinese Classmahjongquick imgur.com/a/UHVs... You can be complicated. If a player goes Mah Jong with a special hand or a player called on a special hand in Mah Jong, the scores of the board but special apply. Otherwise, the value of each hand is calculated, bonus points are added and, if appropriate, any duplicates then take place. The values in each hand are calculated as per the following two tables: Combination Exposure Minor Pung Combination 2 4 Pung 4 8 Minor Tile 8 16 Major Kong Tile 16 32 Pair of Dragons 2 2 Pair of anticipated Van 2 2 Pairs of Clean Wind played a 2 To go Mah Jong 10 to draw the winning title from the Mi 2 to Go Mah Jong and the only possible tile 2 once they have evaluated their count title, each player's score is doubled for each item in this table: Pung or Kong in the player's own air (hidden or exposed) Double Pung or Kong in the stronger wind (hidden or exposed) Double Dragons Double Finally , some additional double that applied to the abortion that went To Mah Jong only. No Choosing Double But Non-Paying (4 Axes and a Pair) Double All One Suit with Some Dragons and/or Wind Double All Bigger Tiles and Some Dragons and/or Wind Double All Dragons and/or Wind Double All Winds (3 Sets and Pairs 1 Double All Dragons 3 (2 sets and 1 pair) Double Go Mah Jong with a loopy Double Go Mah Jong and the last title of the Double Wall Go Mah Jong by Robbing Kong Double Rarely, a player can be named after his first discad. This is called a Original Call. A Mah Jong Unimmers and those same 13 titles plus a discarded tile or take off the wall in consequent turns. Double pungs / Kong in any one suit and a pair. No wind, dragons or chows. Double three times the player who went To Mah Jong is then paid by the other players the amount scored from him. That the player who gets Mah Jong still win the round, though other players have noted the biggest amount of money. If East win, others are paying double. If not, East pays double. Each player loses any other player who loses with a hand of greater value, the difference between the two hands, and pros paid and/or receives double the difference. They bill themselves as making an alternative to the AMJA card alternatives, the most official U.S. Mah Jongg card still produced by the NMJL. But these alternatives are fairly chemical and witty, and they offer an interesting alternative and challenge to the NMJL card if desired and still play according to the standard/official NMJL rules. You can just cut these out and paste them on colorful paper charts with a raincast stick so that it's folded into three sections.
